

EBHR

EUROPEAN BULLETIN OF HIMALAYAN RESEARCH

---

Call for papers

---

The European Bulletin of Himalayan Research (EBHR) was founded by the late Richard Burghart in 1991 and has appeared twice yearly ever since. It is edited on a rotating basis between France (CNRS), Germany (South Asia Institute) and the United Kingdom (SOAS). From 2019 to 2023, the EBHR is hosted at CNRS's Centre for Himalayan Studies in France.

The subjects covered by the journal range from geography and economics to anthropology, sociology, philology, history, art history, archaeology and history of religions. In terms of geographical scope, the journal has published material that covers the Himalayas within a broad definition and not limited to the geological region, but taken to include the Karakorum, Hindukush, Ladakh, southern Tibet, Kashmir, north-west India, Nepal, Sikkim, Bhutan and North-East India.

Publishing with and reading the EBHR is free of charge and all journal content is licensed under the Creative Commons BY-NC-ND 4.0 International License. We are currently working towards making the EBHR an online and fully open-access journal with a dedicated website.

We welcome individual submissions that fall within the following categories:

Articles (peer-reviewed): manuscripts should range between 8,000 and 10,000 words, and must include a full list of cited references, as well as a 200-word abstract at the beginning of the document with a list of 5-6 keywords.

Research Notes (peer-reviewed): these are more limited in scope than conventional articles. Manuscripts are expected to be up to 4,000 words long and to consist of an in-depth discussion of a particularly timely or topically relevant issue, and can take the form of an opinion piece. Essays are selected by the EBHR editors for their academic cogency and timeliness, and are peer-reviewed.

Conference Reports (reviewed by editors): the journal welcomes reports of approximately 1,500 words about conferences relevant to the field of Himalayan studies from a broad perspective and ideally submitted within one year following the event.

Review Essays (reviewed by editors): these are scholarly reviews of recent publications or exhibitions, which provide a more robust discussion than a conventional book review. The journal particularly welcomes comparative reviews of a selection of up to four recent publications that can be constructively cross-examined.

Book Forum (reviewed by editors): the editors may occasionally commission a forum around a recent publication: several scholars will therefore be invited to offer comments with the aim of producing a constructive criticism of the work. These comments will be sent to the author who will be invited to respond.

Book Reviews (editors reviewed): book reviews of recent publications are included in each issue of the journal.

Dissertations Abstracts: once a year a list of recently defended doctoral dissertations will be published with an abstract and list of keywords. The aim is to disseminate recent scholarly work in a timely manner and before it appears in published form.

Announcements: conferences, workshops, etc.

If you have a proposal for a themed section (up to four articles) or a special issue, we would like to hear from you. As we develop the journal as an online outlet in the near future, we are also interested in considering submissions that rely heavily on the use of visual documentation, such as photographs and videos.

If you wish to submit a manuscript for publication, feel free to contact the editors or to submit your manuscript directly. Further information about submission formats and the EBHR style guidelines can be found online here.

If you have any questions about publishing with us, please contact the editors at: editors@ebhr.eu